DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claim 1-6 and 14-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over EP 1,189,025 (Hobbs et al). As to claims 1-6 and 14-17, Hobbs et al disclose an inertial rate sensor and method with built-in testing including sensor (sensing element 11) with oscillating signal (drive signal) sense signal (pick-up signal) and associated circuitry including drive oscillator 28 including scaling the oscillating signal (as depicted in figure 2 at summer 34 and combining the scaled oscillating signal via sample-hold circuit 23 and compensation summer 21, see figs. 1 and 2. Further, it is noted that a specific “scaling” circuit and “combining” circuit are not defined by Hobbs et al. However, given that the functions of scaling and combining are accomplished in the apparatus illustrated, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have designated the circuitry involving scaling as a scaling circuit and the circuitry involving combining as combining circuitry since these labels merely describe the functions accomplished by the device. As to claims 3 and 4, note demodulator 18 and demodulator 32, note figs. 1 and 2. As to claim 5, note A/D converter 87. As to claim 6, note par[27].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

5. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claims 1 and 7, it would appear that a system of the sensor and circuit are being claimed rather than just the circuit as the preamble suggests. Further, it appears that the claims are unclear include just recitations of “circuits” without any actual apparatus limitations but rather just functional limitations. In claims 1, 7, 14 and 18, when it is recited that the sensor provides a sense signal out of phase with the oscillation, it is unclear if the signal is always out of phase or is there is a part of the signal that is in phase with the oscillation.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 7 and 18 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action.
